STATE EDUCATORS TO PRY INTO BILL

One of the questions with which County Superintendents will have to deal at the approaching meeting of their association in Frankfort is the method of co-operation between the State and Federal Government under the Smith-Hughes act for promotion of vocational education. Under this act the Federal Government proposes to appropriate large sums for agricultural and industrial trade training in the public schools upon condition that the State appropriate an equal amount.

State Supt. V. O. Gilbert is sending out circulars to the County Superintendents, containing a digest of the measure, and they will propose to the General Assembly a plan whereby the State may take advantage of the offer.

For the first year the Government would appropriate $1,700,000, increasing it annually until the total is $7,000,000, in 1923-24. Of this sum the first year a half-million each would go for agricultural training, trades and industrial training and training of vocational teachers, and $200,000 for administration and investigation by the Federal Board.

JIM ALLEN, HE SAYS:

In the ever-witty and pithy "Pet and Pertinent" column in the Cynthiana Democrat, Editor Jim Allen says: "Luke McLuke tries to poke fun at Paris, Ky., girls because a firm in that city carried a holiday advertisement, 'Put furniture in her stocking.' Just as if pokers are not part of a house's furnishings!"

HIGHEST COURT DECIDES ANTI-LIQUOR LAW VALID.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In the most sweeping of all decisions upholding prohibition laws, the Supreme Court Monday held constitutional and valid the Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting shipments of liquor from "wet" to "dry" States. The court also sustained West Virginia's recent amendment to her law prohibiting importation in interstate commerce for personal use.

After being vetoed by President Taft, who held it unconstitutional, the Webb-Kenyon act was repassed over his veto and the law Monday was sustained in the Supreme Court by a vote of seven to two. Leaders of the prohibition movement regard the law as second in importance only to the proposed constitutional amendment.

Lawyers for the liquor interest, who heard the decision, admit that it upholds and applies the law "in its fullest sense."

It was announced that Justice McReynolds concurred in the decision, but not completely in the opinion.

Justices Holmes and Vandeventer were the two dissenting justices.

"The all-reaching power of Government over liquor is settled," said the Chief Justice in announcing the decision. "There was no intention of Congress to forbid individual use of liquor. The purpose of this act was to cut out by the roots the practice of permitting violation of State liquor laws. We can have no doubt that Congress has complete authority to prevent paralyzing of State authorities. Congress exerted a power to co-ordinate the National with the State authority."

Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, who with Fred Blue, State Prohibition Commissioner of West Virginia, argued the case before the Court made this statement on the Court's decision:

"The States may now prohibit the possession, receipt, sale and use of intoxicating liquor and not be hampered by the agencies of interstate commerce."

The Federal Webb-Kenyon act of March 1, 1913, and West Virginia's prohibition laws, were brought before the Supreme Court in two test cases of the James Clark Distilling Company, of Cumberland, Md., against the American Express Company, and Western Maryland railroad. Whether prohibition States under the Webb-Kenyon law or otherwise may prohibit shipment of intoxicating liquors, in interstate commerce, for personal use or citizens in "dry" territory was the principal question raised.

TOBACCO EXPORTERS FIND MARKET IN WEST AFRICA

United States Consul W. J. Yerby, reporting to the Department of Foreign Commerce, Washington, D. C., from Dakar, states that the greater part of the tobacco imported into that territory is in the natural leaf form. Although statistics as to its source are not available, it appears that at least 95 per cent. of it originates in the United States. In 1915 imports of leaf tobacco into the French colonies amounted to $381,614 in value, against $529,369 in 1914. Imports into the British colonies totaled in value $2,126,515, against $1,372,177 in 1914.

Practically all of the manufactured tobacco imported is of cigarettes, hermetically sealed in tins. The natives take readily to the cigarette, and their preference for them to the leaf and pipe is growing rapidly, it is said.

The only representative of American tobacco in West Africa is at Dakar, where a large American exporting company has a branch in which from 30 to 40 natives are regularly engaged in "retreating" the tobacco consigned in Senegal. The market seems to be present still further opportunity for American exporters of leaf tobacco.

PRICES OF TURKISH CIGARETTES ADVANCED.

Advances in the prices of Turkish cigarettes ranging from 45 cents to $1 a thousand were announced Tuesday by P. Lorillard & Company, one of the largest tobacco manufacturers in the country. The increase in cost of paper and other expenses was given as the reason. The higher wholesale prices are said to foreshadow corresponding advances in the retail trade.
